CIRL'S DEATH LAID TO AUNT

Police Declare Child Four Years Old Was Stabbed with a Fork Cruelly Beaten and Thrown Down Flight of Stairs.

LITTLE ONE'S BACK WAS BROKEN BY FALL

accused Woman Smilingly Refused to Plead and When Locked in Cell Sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Katharine Flynn Ray, a young wife, tood before Judge Schalk in the Toird Police Precinct Station, Newark, today, charged with the murder of her little niece, Mary Conning, a girl of four of whom this young woman was so jealous that, if the story told by the police be true, she deliberately planned

She looked more like the lady in the tear-room than a person accused of murder before the bar of justice. All about her were accusers, and in the desk lay a toasting-fork with three heavy and snarp prongs all smeared with blood. He were scusers, the legs of which were broken and smeared with blood.

Found Daug at the Stairs.

Little Many Conning was found dying last singht at the foot of the stalist leading to be foster-monther's apartments. For back was broken and the write great vounds in her sizes and her stomach and legs, elleged to have been made by the toasting fork's pronts, which had been dug deep into her flesh "Cail an ambulance," cried betective Schiffer. "This child is dying."

The ambulance was, called and the child was placed in it.

Once she revived and in her baby voice called out: "Please don't hit me so hard aunty. Please don't hit me so hard aunty of the hilling kill hilling woman of her and her with place her was a gasp. The ambulance surgeon souched the driver.

Quickly the police began to look for the aunt of the little girl. They had been made suspicious by the child's and her provided her his winter a police. The little girl is dead."

Quickly the p seemed to sparkle and she raised her gloved hand to conceal what was the aunt of the little girl. They had been made suspicious by the child's dying words. They went to the Ray home, at No. 16 McWhorter street. They found the nome locked and in darkness. "Break in." commanded Detective

Schiller. "Break in the doors." The door was broken in. Standing ir the centre of the parior was Mrs. Ray. She was smiling and stood as though she were receiving guests. "Have you murdered that child?" was

For answer the woman smiled hgain. "You are under arrest," the detective aid. "You are accused of the murder of that little neice of yours."

Taken to a Cell.

Katharine Flynn Ray only smiled again and she was led away to a cell n the station house.

Then the police began an investigation. All about the Ray rooms was disorder. The furniture was broken. Then there was found the bloody toasting fork. A chair had been used, the police say, to beat the child to insensiing fork. A chair had been used, the police say, to beat the child to insensibility after the fork is alleged to have eserved its ourpose.

That the child had tried to escape the attacks was shown by furniture that was overturned. The police charge that, after sinking into unconsciousness, the murderer had litted the little figure in her arms and hurled her down the steep stairways.

She refused to Plead.

She refused to plead, and the case was adjourned for a week.

When she was led back to her cell her mother, greatly moved, stepped forward to speak to her, when the Judge called:

"That woman must not be allowed to speak to any one.

The mother was pushed back and the daugher was led away. Once in her cell tile marvellous indifference of the prisoner became more manifest. Looked behind the bars, with no one allowed to speak to her, she began singing. Her volce, a deep controllous sounded through the corridors of the jail as she hummed and then sang:

What a friend we have in Jesus, and our sins and griefs to bear!

What a privilege to carry.

Everything to him in prayer!

Foverything to him in prayer! Where the body was not covered with fresh bruises and cuts there were cuts and brulses that had been made days

Everything to him in prayer!

"Everything to him to prayer."

A study of the woman wind convince one that she is mad. Her actions to-day certathiv indicated it.

Katherine Ray's father is Morrist Flynn, a contractor in Newark and a non of means. The gill was reared in luxury and had every home comfort. She became wild when hardly more than a child and caused much trouble, the police say, because of her temper and her inclination to make trouble for say one who crossed her path or aroused her jealousy. or weeks ago.

When the police saw the silent witnesses of the great cruelty practised on the child they were made almost sees. They began questioning the neighbors, said from them they learned that they frequently heard the child crying in sgony. Mrs. Purcell, who lives on the floor above the Rays, heard the child creaming in pain and fright hefore she was found dying in the cold at the foot if the shairs last night.

Often Mrs. Purcell had heard the little one scream out in the day and night is in cruel blows were raining upon her. Frum the neighbors the police searned now the foster mother had first taken her own two little children.
